Tata Power commits to clean energy on centenary year

Special Correspondent

MUMBAI: Tata Power, as part of its centenary celebrations, has announced plans to develop 450 MW clean power through hydel to contribute to green energy initiative. This year, the company will commission 120 MW hydro power capacity to mark 100 year celebrations, it said.

Tata Power commissioned its first hydro unit of 12 MW on February 9, 1915 at Khopoli near here, and has since grown to be a big company of having generation capacity of 8621 MW.

To contribute to the society, Tata Power said, its Skilled Development Institute would train 200,000 people, and it would help save Rs.100 crore through promoting energy conservation.

veiled a new logo to mark the occasion. Anil Sardana, Managing Director and CEO, Tata Power, said: "It is with extreme pride, joy and honour that we would like to ring in celebrations for our centenary year. Moving forward, the Company will continue to announce various initiatives being undertaken for various stakeholders." "Tata Power will also work towards its mission of having a 20-25 per cent contribution from 'clean power sources'. The company has been working in different areas of renewable power generation — both grid connected as well as distributed generation — for strengthening its clean energy portfolio" Mr. Sardana said.

Beginning its journey hundred years ago, Tata Power today has a significant presence across the power value chain. From fuel and logistics to generation and transmission to distribution and trading, the company is poised for a multi-fold growth.

Tata Power has also been the catalyst for multiplication of several other Tata businesses, including Tata Projects, TATA Power Solar, Tata Consulting Engineers and a few other businesses.

Globally, only one per cent of registered companies have survived for 100 years and among them three are from the Tata group, which include Indian Hotels Company, Tata Steel and Tata Power.
